The World Poker Tour (WPT) is more than a poker TV show. They have their own website, Facebook, Twitter and YouTube pages. Tens of thousands of poker players have watched the WPT on television and online for more than 15 years. Now the WPT is branching out. "ESPN has the largest and most passionate sports fan base in the world, and now we'll be able to reach tens of millions of fans via social media with our live production of our flagship series," said WPT Executive Producer Steve Zolotow. "We can't wait to bring our fans the best poker broadcast experience possible." In addition to production of the web-exclusive WPT High Roller Challenge, the WPT will live-stream their high-stakes tournaments on WPT.com, including the WPT Championship and the WPT Millionaries' Club Championship. Scott Schneider, president of WPT Productions, says the WPT's online presence will grow significantly. "Live production will be more video and fewer people as we continue to increase the size of our live production team," Schneider said. While the WPT travels the world, their home base is at ESPN. Schneider says the WPT is responsible for the success and proliferation of poker in North America," said veteran poker player and Piers Morgan's "Poker Night" host Phil Gordon. Gordon is a member of the "WPT Founder's Club" – a group of previous WPT player
