

if you have access to your router's serial port then you should be able to issue a `reset` command to it. if this does not work, then there may be a problem with your web browser or something that you are typing into the url bar. if you are looking for a challenge, you can use serialx to get remote access to the router's serial port. this software has a live serial terminal. alternatively, someone has written a native port for mac os x. but, the best place to get help with this issue is the forums. we may be able to work it out. can you do me one other favor? could you create a thread on our port forwarding forum explaining the issue? the site has created a template i could use for an explanation of the issues you are having. it might just be that we know the fix. i will need to update the template sometime. how to upgrade the firmware on a device with no internet access brand ubnt fb not directly available cyberconnect2 cloud update will be available to users who have visited the website or ubnt cybercloud page .
