apart from the game's missions, players will also be able to explore the sprawling city of steelport, with multiple hubs you can go to to get items, and buy upgrades for your character. you'll also be able to customize your player name, your appearance, and your playstyle, and as you complete missions and earn stars, you'll be able to unlock new ways to customize your character. if you get stuck on a mission, you can also opt to play the game in the new "red room" mode, which lets you play the game in more of a first-person perspective, but with mouse control only. saints row iv takes place in the steelport region of the simulation, a virtual world that's been created by the zin empire to imprison humans. as the story goes, the zpd, police created by the zin empire for the sole purpose of policing the people of steelport, are being controlled by their "god," who is more interested in controlling the humans than anything else. this is what drives the conflict between the two sides in the game, and also how players will be able to get a glimpse of a past they've never seen before. i've also never been so happy to see a game end. i can't wait to see what volition has planned for the future with saints row: gat out of hell, but at this point i'm so happy to have this story done, and am so ready to move on to the next. with the power of technology, the future looks so bright for this series that i'm terrified i'll get lost in the sun. in the mission "the saints", you will be informed that there are 3 inmates left to kill. if you put the hostage in the cell, you will be able to speak to the inmates. you can kill them with the knife you got from the first mission. if you get the weapon from the second mission "big bad", you will be able to kill them with that weapon. it's recommended that you don't do this in order to not lose your weapon, or you will lose it after this mission.
