The study aimed to assess efficacy, safety and tolerability of ceftibuten in elderly patients with acute uncomplicated cystitis. The trial comprised of 129 patients (84 female, 45 male) aged > or = 65 years. Women were evaluated in the first trimester of menstruation and men were evaluated during the intermenstrual period. Both in women and men aged 65-70 ceftibuten 400 mg/d was administered orally on the 1st and 4th day of the treatment. If the patient presented with lower abdominal pain, she was admitted to hospital and the ceftibuten regimen was continued. Female patients with the lower abdominal pain before treatment were assessed for symptoms and signs of pyo-peritonitis. A total of 50 patients (38.2%) reported no improvement on day 2 or 4 of treatment. Treatment was discontinued in 12 female patients (9.3%). The entire group of patients (women as well as men) was re-evaluated with regard to symptoms and signs of pyo-peritonitis, abnormal urinalysis and normalization of leukocyturia. At re-evaluation pyo-peritonitis was discovered in 37% of patients, abnormal urinalysis in 68% of patients and leukocyturia in 28% of patients. The daily dosage of ceftibuten was not correlated with the intensity of symptoms or leukocyturia. Asymptomatic bacteriuria was more common among women. Treatment was discontinued in 13% of women and 12% of men. The highest discontinuation rate was recorded among female patients aged > or = 75 years (24%). 13% of patients reported nausea and vomiting. The results of the trial confirmed the good tolerability of ceftibuten in the elderly, it was well-tolerated by patients aged > or = 75 years.Q: Updating the same table with another table having foreign key relation I'm trying to figure out a way to update a table with another table. Let's say I have the following tables: User and Ticket. The User table has a foreign key to the Ticket.UserID column. The Ticket has a column Ticket.UserID. When I insert a new Ticket into the table, I
